ALLEGED DILLINGER GANGSTERS KILLED BY BANK EMPLOYEE

Two Others Escape in Automobile at South Holland, Indiana

IN ATTEMPTED HOLD-UP

Two Desperadoes Carried Machine-Guns As They Gave 'Stick-Up' Order

SOUTH HOLLAND, Ill., May 25.—Two bandits, reported to have been members of the John Dillinger gang, were shot and killed today when they attempted to hold up the South Holland Trust and Savings Bank. Two other bandits escaped in the car.

Each morning, it is the custom at the bank to post an employee, with a machine gun, on the balcony, as the bank doors and vaults are opened. As the doors were flung open at 9.30 this morning, two bandits carrying machine guns, walked in; two others remained in an automobile outside the bank.

"Stick 'em up, everybody," yelled one of the men who entered the bank. At this instant, however, the bank employee on the balcony opened fire and the two desperadoes fell dead.

PARIS—(INS)—A French 10-centime piece with the inscription, "David Lehr, cook. Batt. D. 7 F. A. U. S. A. 1918. 127617" is today in the possession of the Paris Legion post. It probably has passed through hundreds of thousands of hands since the one-time cook in the Seventh Field Artillery scraped his name on it.

New Hope Grocer Dies at Age of 64

NEW HOPE, May 25.—Joseph D. Holcombe died Wednesday in the Doylestown Emergency Hospital following a lengthy illness. He was 64 years old.

He had been a life-long resident of this place and operated a grocery store for nearly 50 years, taking charge of it at the age of 15 years. Since 1908 he had been secretary of the New Hope Building and Loan Association and was a member of the Masonic fraternity in Lambertville.

Mr. Holcombe was the son of the late John and Isabella Pickett Holcombe and is survived by two half-brothers, Elmer and Addison Kitchen, of Lambertville, and two half-sisters, Mrs. Jessie Patterson, of Lambertville, and Mrs. Mabel Robillard, of Linden, N. J.

Funeral services will be held from his late residence, on South Main Street, at 2.30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. D. Wilson Hollinger, pastor of Bethany Presbyterian Church, Trenton, assisted by the Rev. Samuel A. Jackson, of New Hope. Interment will be in Mt. Hope Cemetery, Lambertville, where services will be conducted by Amwell Lodge, F. & A. M. Friends may call tomorrow evening.

MARVELS OF NATURE IN SOUTHERN MOTOR TRIP

Tour Outlined Includes The Caverns of Shenandoah Valley of Virginia

COVERS 882 MILES

Those marvels of nature, the spectacular and weirdly beautiful caverns and grottoes of the Shenandoah Valley in Virginia provide the lure for a motor trip along the famous Robert E. Lee Highway, one of the most picturesque and most interesting highways in the east.

The Keystone Automobile Club has outlined a motor tour to this delightful wonderland where every turn in the road presents to the view of the motorist an ever changing and beautiful rolling panorama. In addition, the tour is so mapped that the motorists will pass through some of the territory that is steeped in national history.

The entire tour can be covered in approximately 882 miles according to Edward B. Watson, manager of the Bucks County Division of the Club.

From Bristol the tour leads south through Philadelphia and over U. S. route 13 from Darby through Chester and Wilmington to State Road. Bearing to the right here the travelers pass into U. S. route 40 through Elkton to Perryville where the Susquehanna River is crossed to Havre de Grace and Baltimore. Leaving Baltimore over the famous National Old Trails Highway, marked as U. S. route 40, the journey continues through countryside rich in history of the stirring Civil War times enroute to Frederick. From this latter city the travelers use U. S. route 340 to the Potomac River which is crossed to Harpers Ferry in one of the most scenic regions of the old Southland. Through Charlestown and Beryville the travelers reach Winchester.

The importance of Winchester in the heart of this beautiful and fertile valley has made it a prize for armies in every war since the Revolution. As a result practically every village and town through which travelers pass has its place in our nation's history. Winchester has relics from the days when Washington was employed here as a surveyor. A century later the town was the scene of many combats between the Union and Confederate troops. Southward over U. S. route 11, the tour passes through Strasburg and New Market to Harrisonburg. Easily accessible from the main road, the Shenandoah and Luray caverns provide a wide variety

DIRECT NUMBER RACKET

Philadelphia, May 25.—Police today were working on the theory that Philadelphia "big shots" in the numbers racket were directing operations from Camden, N. J. According to police, a number of persons arrested in a raid here yesterday, have supplied information that "higher-ups" in the numbers game have taken refuge in the New Jersey city, escaping the activities of the intensive drive against numbers racketeers here. Police also revealed that fake tickets to the "Irish Sweepstakes" were being sold to gullible persons.

WIDELY VARIED TASK OF EDUCATION IS ASSIGNED TO DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION --- SUPERVISION OF CLASSROOM

Guiding Hand is Present from Kindergarten to Years Beyond College

LICENSES 17 PROFESSIONS

Strives to Iron Out Inequalities in Educational Advantages

(Note: This is the seventh of a series of "Know Your State Government" articles written for the Courier by International News Service.)

HARRISBURG, May 25.—(INS)—To the Department of Public Instruction is assigned the widely varied task of education, not only the supervision of classroom study but also the direction of special education and regulation of professional conduct.

It is, as its name implies, a department for the instruction of the public and its guiding hand is present from the kindergarten and through the classroom on into the years beyond college.

The primary function of this department is to carry out the mandate of the constitution which guarantees a "thorough and efficient system of public schools" for all children over six years of age. In addition to this, however, the department has been given through the years the duty of administering every educational activity of the government and of regulating through licensing 17 different professions.

Through the Bureau of Education, the department works hand in hand with every one of the 2,585 school districts in the state to prepare and revise curricula and to develop standardization of elementary, high and vocational schools, special classes and extension courses. It establishes minimum courses of study and decrees certain standards for classroom conditions and study.

Through the Bureau of School Administration and Finance, the department strives to iron out inequalities in educational advantages in various localities due to varied income of school districts. Subsidies totaling $53,000,000 were provided by the Legislature in the 1933-35 biennial budget and these are spread in such a way as to aid backward districts to reach the level of more advanced schools where operating income is higher.

The department supervises directly the activities of the 13 state-owned teachers colleges and the five special schools for deaf and orphaned children. Indirectly, it lends a guiding hand to the activities of the 18 state

SELLERSVILLE BOARD LISTS NINE PROJECTS

Commerce Chamber Seeks New Industries For The Borough

PLAN FOR ZONING

The new Sellersville Chamber of Commerce has lined up nine projects which it hopes to push through for the improvement of the community. Three of the projects are efforts to bring as many different industries to Sellersville.

The new body is also planning a new advertising drive for the town, and new photographs will be taken for publicity purposes, new signboards leading to town will be erected, and maps will be printed.

A plan for zoning the town into residential and business districts, has been discussed favorably, and the new body will draw up a complete building code to submit to Borough Council to be passed as an ordinance as soon as possible.

To give Sellersville a better appearance in the eye of transient motorists, an effort is to be made to have all parking prohibited on the Main street, as soon as the Bethlehem pike is completed as a three-lane highway. The pike forms the main business street of the borough, and the super-highway would be narrowed into a bottleneck as it reached Sellersville, if parking were still continued.

With this end in view, and with the purpose of relieving parking congestion immediately, the Chamber of Commerce will clear off an open lot on Main street, near Walnut, and make it a parking space for the public.

As a means of fostering a "town beautiful" idea, the new group is also to make an effort to have the company which proposes erecting a new filling station on a site where there are now a number of beautiful old elms, dating back beyond the history of the borough, so arrange the plan of the station that the trees may be saved.

The advertising committee appointed consists of Robert Baum, Joseph Daub, and Herman Winzer.

Capt. Martin, of Flushing, To Be Buried Tomorrow

NEWPORTVILLE, May 25.—Funeral will be conducted tomorrow for the late Captain Edward F. Martin, husband of Clara D. Otto Martin, who died at his home in Flushing after a period of ill health covering two years.

The late Mr. Martin, who was formerly captain of a tug boat, had been in that service for about 43 years, operating craft in the Delaware River and Bay and their tributaries. He first became a licensed pilot in 1887, having previously seen service on sailing vessels. He had followed the sea since 11 years of age, his first work being as a cabin boy. In this capacity and in other he followed sea life in coast-wise traffic and to South America. He had retired from active service three years ago. Previous to coming to this section he had resided in Philadelphia. He was affiliated with the Master Mates and Pilots Association.

Survivors of Captain Martin include his wife; and seven children: Miss Anna Martin, Edward, Frank, Lawrence Martin, Bensalem Township; Thomas, of Panama; Mrs. James O'Connor and Mrs. Howard Ehle, Philadelphia.

The funeral tomorrow will be held from the Martin home at 8.30 a. m., with Solemn Requiem Mass at St. Thomas Aquinas Church, Croydon, at 10 o'clock. Burial will be made in Holy Sepulchre Cemetery, Philadelphia, and friends may call this evening.

NATION'S PULSE THROBS IN DEVOTION TO BRAVES

Those Who Gave Lives For Country and Those They Held Most Dear

V. F. W. MAKES PLANS

By V. F. W. Correspondent

At this season of the year the pulse of a mighty nation throbs with increased devotion in memory of its fallen heroes. Again the people of the United States will keep the annual tryst with their beloved dead. Homage and tribute will be offered at the graves of those, who without asking the reason why, have died that the great Republic might live and prosper, and that all might have bread to eat and seed to sow, and within every heart there will swell the highest emotion of gratitude for the service which they so gladly gave. Flowers of sweet remembrance will be placed by loving hands on grass-grown graves, expressing in symbolic terms the sincere appreciation and tender affection that this nation bears for its heroic dead.

For, indeed, the service that they gave is immortal. Their collective contribution to America's greatness is etched in undying glory, and as Longfellow says: "—And departing, leave behind us (they have left their) footprints on the sands of time." Their sacrifice should constitute a priceless heritage for those of us who still love freedom and democracy, that we, the living, should ever cherish and hold high.

During this commemorative season many of us will be apt to remember only the heroes of the World's War, and extol their brave deeds, which in itself is very commendable, but it is not enough. We should turn the pages of the past and should resurrect, in spirit, those unvanquished warriors who fought ever gloriously for the country, and for its ideals. In spirit we should see them once again marching across the ramparts of time, swinging along in their martial steps onward, courageous and unafraid. Across the pale of the years we see a great nation born into the world, and we visualize the great struggle of the heroes at Valley Forge, at Brandywine, at Saratoga, fighting for the principles of freedom which they gained with the victory at Yorktown. A new trail is broken through the vast wilderness of the West and down through the years our brave men continue to march for the building of a great empire. We see them at Gettysburg, Antietam, Shiloh, and we still march

HEAR ELECTION CASE

Pittsburgh, May 25.—Mental pictures of "night riders" dashing from polling place to polling place in Pittsburgh, to "cheat" in the Congressional election of 1932, today danced before a jury of 12 men hearing testimony against Senator James J. Coyne and 11 co-defendants in Federal Court. Federal prosecuting attorney turned to more than two score witnesses to substantiate the charges that a "conference" was called on election night, after which men were dispatched to all parts of the city to order changes for Republican candidates.

FARLEY NOT CANDIDATE

Washington, D. C., May 25.—"Big Jim" Farley, who directs the nation's largest business enterprise—the Post Office Department—is satisfied with his present job. Under no conceivable circumstances will he be a candidate for governor of New York this year. He won't run and he won't be drafted. The genial postmaster general made this emphatically clear today in an interview in which he said he hoped that his denial of political ambitions would quell once and for all, the recurrent reports that he has his eye on the New York governorship. As for the future—well, the future is the future and will have to take care of itself.

ANSWERS LABOR PROTEST

Philadelphia, May 25.—Cries of labor in protest against proposals for unification of railroads were answered today by A. J. County, vice-president, in charge of finance, of the Pennsylvania Railroad. In an exclusive interview with I. N. S., County, whose presentation of a new plan for solidification of eastern roads has provoked comment throughout the country, said that the allegedly adverse effect of such unification on the size of the working personnel, has been greatly exaggerated. "I believe that an increase of ten or 15 per cent in traffic would absorb the estimated decrease in the number of employees and labor therefore would not be deprived of a living because of the consolidation."

An increase in railroad traffic would be achieved under his plan, County asserted, because a stoppage of wasteful competition would bring about lower freight rates and passenger fares, thus directing the business from competing transportation agencies. In this manner passengers and merchandise shippers would benefit as well as the laboring man.

ANCHOR YACHT CLUB ACTIVITIES UNDER WAY

Boats Being Painted and Made Ready For The Season

A ROCKING CHAIR FLEET

With a continuance of the fine weather of the past few days there is going to be much activity in and around the Anchor Yacht Club. This is always a busy season of the year for the boatmen. Paint brushes are swinging and the hammers are pounding, as boats are being made ready.

Commodore Edward Dougherty says the club is going to have more boats over this year, than last. He figures there will be 24 cruisers and eight outboards. Most of these are now in the water. In fact there are only about five which are yet to take their initial plunge of the year.

The Club is very prosperous and the membership totals about 100. Then there is the ladies' auxiliary which has 60 members and they are all active, too.

The trustees who look after the building are contracting for a new chimney, exterior painting of the club house and the purchase of 12 "boats" for the rocking chair fleet.

"This club works on a co-operative basis," says Commodore Dougherty. "We do most of the work of repairing and we help each other and in this way, we keep the dues at a low figure and are still able to have a balance in the treasury."

Some clubs charge big membership fees and then spend most of it for work which is always necessary about such an institution.

The Anchor Club also boasts of one of the fastest, if not the fastest boat of its class along the Delaware River. This is the boat of "Ted" Megargee.

The Anchor Club gave a rousing greeting to Paul Cranston, of buggery fame on Wednesday evening. Cranston arrived in his yacht off the Anchor slip and was warmly greeted by Commodore Dougherty. The Cranston yacht was tied up at the slip overnight and both the club members and members of the Auxiliary greeted the good will tourist. A number of short talks were given.

Elks Enjoy Banquet On 29th Anniversary

Bristol Lodge, No. 970, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, celebrated the 29th anniversary last night with a banquet and vaudeville entertainment at the club headquarters on Radcliffe street.

Toastmaster, Howard I. James, who has acted in that capacity at every one of the 29 annuals, with a few brief remarks complimented the officers of the lodge and introduced ten of the charter members who attended. Mr. James said that out of an original membership of 53, 25 are still members.

Exalted Ruler, Jacob C. Schmidt, Jr., spoke briefly on the work of the lodge during his regime and urged the members to give the new officers every co-operation.

The officers for the next year are: exalted ruler, Mulford L. Callanan; esteemed leading knight, John H. Brehm; esteemed loyal knight, Maxwell J. Gordon; esteemed lecturing knight, Charles G. Rathke; secretary, Howard I. Thornton; treasurer, John M. Wright; tiler, George W. Buckley.

RED CROSS WORKERS LAUDED FOR HELP

Hundred Women Are Guests of Mrs. William R. Mercer, Jr.

MEETING OF DIRECTORS

DOYLESTOWN, May 25.—About 100 women, representing ten Bucks county branches of the Red Cross, were the guests of Mrs. William R. Mercer, Jr., at her home, "Aldie," on Wednesday afternoon at a Red Cross meeting planned by the board of directors of the Doylestown branch. Miss Elizabeth Ross, president of the County Seat branch, presided. Active in Red Cross work since 1914, Mrs. Mercer, the hostess, welcomed the women.

A roll call showed that women from Bristol, Langhorne, Lower Bensalem, Morrisville, New Hope, Quakertown, Southampton, Wycombe and Pennlyn were present. Three branches, Perkaskie, Sellersville and Yardley, failed to send representatives.

Among the guests were Mrs. Henry Brinton Cox, of Philadelphia, who stated the membership of the Southeastern Chapter of the Red Cross is as large as that of New York and Washington combined. Two-thirds of the Braille work carried on in the state is done by the Southeastern chapter.

Mrs. Thomas Potter, chairman of the production committee of the Southeastern Chapter, urged the women to enlist as many new members as possible in the next roll call. "We at headquarters do nothing without having in mind the voluntary branches," said Mrs. Potter. "Red Cross today is as great a necessity to our nation as it was in 1918."

Henry M. Baker, Washington, D. C. Red Cross worker, described in an interesting manner the origin and objectives of the Red Cross. Mr. Baker pointed out that the Red Cross was unique in origin because it was created by an international treaty of which the United States was a signatory power.

There are 3600 chapters in the country, composed of about 10,000 branches. The Red Cross cannot hold property, be sued or sue. To Congress the new organization seemed so important that they decided to protect it by federal enactment.

Among the phases of service, Mr. Baker stressed the fact that the Red Cross emphasizes prevention rather than palliative measures. It inspires people to work rather than commands people to work. About 950,000 people are working under the Red Cross flag.

Among its objectives are to do every job in the best possible way, such as the Red Cross nursing service, first aid and life saving, and home service activities. The Red Cross is engaged in a nation-wide area of service. The work is carried on in 58 countries all over the world.

Mr. Baker described various incidents he experienced while doing Red Cross work in the time of great disaster in all parts of America, and several foreign countries.

A representative of the Children's Aid Society of Philadelphia, J. Prentice Murphy, declared that "the great sorrow upon the land is being lifted in part by public agencies such as the Red Cross. The Government cannot do it all, and just when we thought we

BUS CO. APPLICATION

Announcement is made today by the Trenton-Philadelphia Coach Company that an application is to be made to the public service commission of Pennsylvania, for the privilege of operating motor vehicles for the transportation of persons on schedule between Philadelphia and Morrisville, and intermediate points in Bucks County, along the Roosevelt Boulevard and Lincoln Highway. A public hearing upon the application will be held in room 296, City Hall, Philadelphia, June 5th, at 10 a. m., Eastern daylight saving time.

PRESENT MEDALS AND DIPLOMAS AT TWP. GRADUATION

90 Boys and Girls Receive Certificates To Enter High School

J. H. HOFFMAN SPEAKS

American Legion Medals Are Given to Irene Rodgers and Stanley Dick

The edifice of the Bristol Methodist Episcopal congregation was filled and overflowing last evening on the occasion of the annual commencement exercises of Bristol Township public schools. Parents, other relatives, members of the faculty, and friends, assembled to witness the program and bid the young boys and girls success in their future scholastic life.

The graduates, 90 in number, were seated in the choir loft, the girls garbed in white, and each wore a pink carnation, the class flower. Some of the graduates participated in the program, and other features included instrumental music, an address by Superintendent of Bucks County Schools J. Harry Hoffman, of Doylestown; and presentation of the American Legion medals to the boy and girl in the class chosen as the best all-round students.

The names of the ones honored in receiving the American Legion medals were first announced when Ralph Scheffey was called to the platform. The medal for the best boy student, a gift of Robert W. Bracken Post, 382, was presented to Stanley Dick; and the medal from the American Legion Auxiliary of Bracken Post was given to Miss Irene Rodgers. The latter's was for courage, character, service, companionship and scholarship; while that for the boy was for courage, honor, service, leadership and scholarship. Mr. Scheffey who made the presentation, is a past commander of Bracken Post, and chairman of the school award committee of the post. He was introduced by supervising principal William Kines.

In the first part of his address Superintendent Hoffman asked the young folks who had hoped to graduate at this time not to feel that their lives were ruined or to be wasted just because they were not sitting with those who had completed the course. "Young people could well spend more time in our common school system, studying the English language rather than hurrying into high school and taking up foreign languages so soon; and it would in many cases be better if a better knowledge was had of the lower mathematics before tackling algebra, geometry, and other higher branches." He then told that life does not begin at 40 or even 60. "Life begins every day."

Although he said he disliked the word, "depression," nevertheless he was going through such. Mr. Hoffman referred to the many districts where it is necessary to cut down expenses, and where the school boards have chosen to do away with music, art, and other such subjects. "I'm afraid when we come to do away with music and art and some of these finer things, we're going to pay the penalty. If we cut down on education and religion, you'll be sorry for this country of ours. I'm afraid we're headed in the wrong direction, and we're going to pay the penalty." The young folks were advised to pick out a profession that suits them, "and you'll be happy in your work. How unfortunate it is when we are not working in a sphere that makes us happy!" Citing experiences with scholars throughout the county, the superintendent informed of how many had risen to meet difficult situations. "Be prepared to meet the occasion by having a good foundation."

The county superintendent told that "the depression has come because we older folks were silly, and wanted to make a lot of money without working. You young folks are not responsible, but you will pay and you need some one to help you. It's this group here tonight that will need staunch support. And it's up to us to help them." Then to the graduates: "I hope the oil you're carrying with you and the breakfast of righteousness will help carry you through life." To the grown folks the challenge was given: "Let's all stand together, and give to the children, and in time they'll give back to you."

The diplomas were presented to the 90 boys and girls by Arthur G. Wilkin, Croydon, treasurer of the board of education, who gave advice to the group. There were seven on the honor roll, namely: Raymond Dewees, Jr., Edith M. Griffenberg, Doris Jean Hoppe, Ralph Hart, Marian Mulholland, Jean Roberts, Anna Sabatini.

The other numbers on the well-remembered program were: Music, school orchestra; opening prayer, the Rev. Clarence Howell; welcome, Marian Mulholland; piano solo, Ruth Mutch; oration, "Opportunity," Esther Dunbar; selection, "Sister Months," Edgely chorus; instrumental duet, "The Rosary," Jack Mossbrook and Reinhart Piell; "House by the Side of the Road," Jean Roberts; graduation song,

VANDALISM

The season is here when many ordinarily respectable men and women become vandals.

The wood and green fields, with their many blossoms and fragrant plants, exert an appeal especially hard for the city dweller, cooped up with cement and brick to resist. It is refreshing to get out into the open and drink in these beauties.

But there are many who can not resist the temptation to go much further by despoiling nature's handiwork. They uproot bushes and break off blossoming branches in order to enrich their home for a day or two with their refreshing fragrance. Some of these despoilers even invade private orchards to wrench from a tree a blooming branch. Others confine the quenching of their desire for blooms and shrubbery to the woods.

Neither class is justified in its acts. The woods as well as orchards are private property, and many farmers do not relish even their wild plants being ruthlessly taken without a thank you. They are justified in the resentment they feel and in the suspicion with which they regard these visitors from the city.

Many city dwellers seem to regard as non-existent the rights of private property in the country. They would not think of invading a neighbor's lawn for the purpose of uprooting and carrying off any of his plants or of carrying off armfuls of his flowers. Let them get into the country, though, and they have no moral scruples against thus despoiling the property of rural dwellers.

It's a form of vandalism that had its existence in the days of the buggy and horse and which has increased with use of the automobile.

There appears to be no effective way of stopping it short of employing armed guards to protect woods and fields, which would be an extreme step that farmers hesitate to take.

HOW TO DO IT

Two thousand slot machines dumped into the Atlantic ocean by New York city police just after the newly-enacted state anti-slot machine law went into effect seems a convincing answer to those who had argued that slot machines couldn't be abolished.

The new law makes it illegal to manufacture, own, store, possess, sell, rent, lease, let on shares, lend, give away, transport, operate or permit the operation of slot machines. Its language is plain. The act is aimed at slot machines, and seeks to make no distinction between those which may be regarded as gambling devices and others. Its definition of slot machines is all-inclusive. There are no loopholes.

It remains simply for the police authorities to do their part in order to rid the state of slot machines. This they can do by seizing and destroying such machines as fast as they are placed in operation, and even any which may not be in operation. The work is made easy by the simplicity of the law.

Now that the fan dance has become only another entertainment feature, the public probably would like to know how the Chicago fair plans to attract crowds this year.

SYNOPSIS

Ann Haskel, taciturn, independent mountaineer, rules the little village of Pine Knob, in the Ozarks, with an iron hand. Though generally considered hard and unbending, Ann could also be extremely generous. A hard-working farmer herself, Ann disapproves of the useless life led by the wealthy vacationists at the Lodge. Among these, however, is one exception—Diane Carrol, lovely young artist, whose work means more to her than her wealth, yet Ann considers Diane's painting a waste of time. The latter, however, greatly admires the mountain woman, who sacrificed her own happiness for her son's future. Years before, following the death of her first husband, Ann had placed her boy, John Herbert, in the care of an old friend, Judge Shannon, so that he might be educated properly. She has not seen John Herbert since. In his place, she raised a ne'er-do-well stepson, Jeff Todd. Then, one day, John Herbert unexpectedly returns. Diane happens to be at the station when he arrives and offers the stranger a lift. They are trapped in the woods by heavy rain and forced to spend the night there. John Herbert confides in Diane that, although he studied law, his heart is in writing and he hopes his mother will not be disappointed. Thrown together as they are, a comradeship is formed such as Diane had never before experienced. Next morning, Ann comes to the rescue. As she approaches, John Herbert exclaims: "It's a woman! Look! She's wearing a man's coat and hat. How funny!" He is stunned when Diane introduces Ann as his mother. The latter, hiding her emotions, coldly says: "I loved you war Herb when I first ketched sight of you. Favor your pa." When he refuses his mother's offer of a drink, Ann commands him savagely: "I ain't wantin' you sick on my hands 'long with all the rest of hit."

CHAPTER XV.

"Cawn-plowin' was over. In the language of the Ozarks the crop was 'laid by.' From now until the fields were ripe for the harvest Nature would work her mysteries unassisted by man.

From the kitchen of the Haskel house came a high-pitched, wailing song of the backwoods. Nance Jordan was singing. She accompanied her vocal efforts with a vigorous clatter of pots and pans.

"A charge to keep I have, O Lawd,

O Lawd,

I's a humble pilgrim on my way.

On my way,

Give me strength to do Thy will,

Thy will,

Lead me safely day by day,

Day by day,

Let me be Thy—

"Shoo! Shoo! Git out of hear, you doggone ornery critters! First thing I'll have you all in the pot, you-all don't quit pesterin' me!"

The shrill threats were mingled with the sounds of cackling and squawking, scurrying wings, scuffing feet, and the vicious swish and thump of a broom. One wily old strategist, cut off from the line of retreat, escaped into the living room. For a second or two he hesitated, gazing fearfully about at his strange surroundings, then, catching sight of the open door to freedom, ran for his life.

For a brief moment the commotion was followed by the dreamy hush of the late summer morning and the brooding peace of the woodland hills. Then again came the clatter of pots and pans and the wailing song.

The living-room of the Haskel house, in keeping with the exterior of the building and the Haskel place as a whole, was larger and, in a way, more pretentious than most living-rooms in the backwoods. The unplastered walls of hewn logs "chinked" and "daubed," the low ceiling of roughbeams and boards, the homemade rag rugs, the cougar skin spread before the wide fireplace of native stone, the deer horns over the mantel, the firebricks hanging on pegs in the wall, the shelf with its ancient clock, and the rude furniture, were all common enough, but there was an atmosphere—a feeling—in the place which made it different. One sensed a presence, a spirit that was not the spirit of the typical poor white backwoods farmer. Yet, Heaven knows, the place was poor enough.

At the end of the room, opposite the fireplace, recently built shelves of books filled the wall space between the window and the corner, and extended from the corner to the door of another room. By the window was a raxhide-bottomed chair and a new cheap deal table. On the table were more books, a litter of papers and writing materials, a student lamp with a green shade, and a brown wide-mouthed jar with a scraggly bunch of flowers.

But it certainly was not these cultural innovations which gave the living-room its feeling of distinction. On the contrary, this bookish corner, having nothing in common with the rest of the room, only served to emphasize the hard poverty of the whole—a poverty which would recognize no interests other than the bare necessities of life.

The singing in the kitchen ceased. Nance appeared in the doorway. For a long moment she stood gazing vacantly about, then, with the characteristic slouch and listless step of the poor-white mountaineer, she crossed the room to that corner which was so apart.

The front door and the window nearest the bookshelves were open. Had Nance looked she might have seen, through the trees across the road and beyond the cornfield in the bottoms, a glint of water in the sun, and beyond the river the low, forest-clad hills rolling ridge on ridge into the blue hazy distance.

Just as Diane had painted it that day when Ahab and Uncle Jimmie first discovered her. But the backwoods woman did not so much as glance at the familiar landscape. Had she noticed she would have heard the chatter of a squirrel somewhere in the timber, the lazy cawing of a crow in a dead oak at the edge of the cornfield, the bawling of a calf in the hillside pasture back of the house, and the matronly clucking of a hen in the yard. But she gave no heed to these familiar midsummer sounds. Oblivious to her surroundings, she stood with the reverent air of a religious devotee gazing upon the books and furnishings of that corner. Slowly she put out a workman hand and touched the things on the table. Carefully she wiped an imaginary speck of dust from the chair. Although she knew she had cleaned and filled the lamp that morning, she looked again to see if it was in perfect order. To her that corner of the room was a holy place. Her simple heart desired to worship at this shrine. In her dumb way she hungered to do something that would express her devotion. She rearranged the scraggly flowers in the brown jar. Suddenly her face lit up. Quickly she went back to the kitchen and returned with a gourd dipper of water. With tender care she poured another spoonful or two into the jar. Her face beamed. In a hushed, quivering voice she sang:

"A charge to keep I have, O Lawd,

O Lawd;

A charge to keep, I have—"

Nance was so absorbed in her devotions that she did not notice

Jeff Todd when he appeared suddenly in the open doorway. When Jeff saw her he dodged outside, and keeping all but his face and one eye hidden, watched her shyly, jerking his head back whenever she turned her face in that direction.

With a lingering look over her shoulder toward that corner Nance returned to the kitchen.

When she was gone Jeff again appeared in the doorway. He looked cautiously about to assure himself that there was no one in the room, then stepped outside the door. When he straightened up again and stepped across the threshold he carried a gallon jug.

He was stealing somewhat unsteadily, and with exaggerated caution, toward the door of his room on the farther side of the fireplace when

Nance called from the kitchen:

"If Ann Haskel ketches you with that thar jug of lickar, she'll sure trim you aplenty, Jefferson Davis

Todd."

"If Ann Haskel ketches you with that thar jug of lickar, she'll sure trim you aplenty, Jefferson Davis Todd."

Jeff stopped and faced about with sullen bravado.

"Whose jug of lickar d'you reckon on this hycar is, Nance Jordan, heh? Whose d'you reckon hit is?"

When Nance, standing in the doorway, did not reply, but only looked at him with marked disapproval, he continued, defiantly:

"Hit's my jug of lickar, that's whose 'tis. I reckon a man's got a right to what's his'n, ain't he? I'd sure admire to know if he ain't."

As an afterthought he added: "If you an' old Ann Haskel ain't likin' it, hit, you-all can jest go plumb to hell. Them thar's my sentiments,

Nance Jordan, them's sure my sentiments."

He swung the jug to his mouth with practiced skill.

"You're a-feelin' right peart this mornin', ain't you?" drawled Nance, "an' the mornin' not ha'f gone. You'll pull in your haws mighty sudden when Ann finds you ain't a-havin' like she done told you to."

Jeff grinned. "I war a-havin' all right when she went past, a-join' to the Lodge. I figgered they'd keep her thar a-talkin' long 'nough for me to slip this hycar jug er moonshine into the house. I fetched hit last night. Been aimin' to have me a little toot first chance I git."

"Ann Haskel'll sure toot you when she gets home an' ketches you at hit," returned Nance, dryly.

"I ain't skeered of old Ann Haskel," retorted Jeff, fortifying himself with another pull at the jug. "Jeff Todd ain't skeered of nobody, Jeff Todd ain't."

This hycar's my lickar, ain't it? Didn't I he'p make hit? I'd sure admire to know if a man ain't got a right to a whiff of his own moonshine. I'd sure—"

Nance interrupted him hurriedly. "You'd best hush sich fool talk, Jeff Todd." She went to the door and looked uneasily about. "Some day when you're all lickered up an' a-talkin' big, a revener'll hear you; then whar'll we uns be?"

"Shucks! Thar ain't no call to be skeered. Have a drink."

were sliding down the peak of the depression we experienced the drought in the Middle West."

There is an eternal need on the part of human beings to be understood, and helping people is a difficult job. The Red Cross has stressed the fidelity of service in its home service work. It has served as an interpreter with such results that it makes for public peace.

"Human beings, neglected and allowed to starve, exact a penalty yet to come, and may as men and women never be guilty of that charge," Mr. Murphy concluded.

Dr. Fred Wagner, of Bristol, chairman of the medical division of the Bucks County Red Cross, in a brief talk, explained the work the Red Cross is doing by having the children of parents, receiving food orders and welfare from the State, examined. By this means the county physicians hope to curb malnutrition and other diseases caused by poverty.

Following the meeting there were group discussions of the nursing, production and home service departments of the Red Cross.

Mrs. Mercer served refreshments to her guests on the piazza overlooking the beautiful gardens of Aldie.

Nation's Pulse Throbs In Devotion To Braves

with them to Manila Bay and to the storming of the heights of San Juan Hill, and finally, within the memory of most of us, we see them, the youth of the mighty land, across the seas, advancing in the face of the grim Spectre to achieve the victory of Cantigny, Chateau Thierry and the Argonne Forest.

What will be next? Our hope and our sincere prayer is that God will give us peace, that He will teach us to live amicably one with another, and we will be able to sit under our own fig tree. But should there arise an emergency, we hope that we shall have men who will not be cowards, but men who will gladly and courageously defend their homes and their dear ones.

The members of the Joseph A. Schumacher Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Ladies Auxiliary, and the Cadet Corps, mindful of the great significance of Memorial Day, will celebrate the same in most proper and fitting manner. Beginning with Sunday afternoon they will assemble at the post home, and will visit Saint Dominics and New Cathedral Cemeteries where some of the deceased members are buried, and also Cedar Hill Cemetery, where a deceased member of the Cadet Corps is buried.

Then on Sunday evening, at eight o'clock, they will assemble at the Presbyterian Church of Our Saviour, Wood street and Lincoln avenue, for the annual Memorial Day service, when the Rev. Dr. Andrew G. Sollia, pastor of the Church, and chaplain of the Joseph A. Schumacher Post, will deliver an appropriate sermon for the occasion. Then on Wednesday, together with Robert W. Bracken Post, American Legion, of Bristol, will visit the various cemeteries where proper ceremonies will be held in honor of the dead.

May we not refresh our mind on this occasion of Memorial Day with the immortal lines of Col. John McCrae:

"To you from falling hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high;
If ye break faith with us who die,
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders' Fields."

And also with the lines that R. W.

Willard wrote after the death of Col. McCrae.

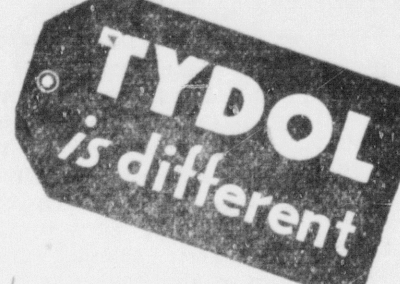

"Rest ye in peace, ye Flanders dead,
The fight that ye so bravely led We've taken up. And we will keep
True faith with you who lie asleep
With each a cross to mark his bed,
And poppies blowing overhead,
Where once his own life blood ran red
In Flanders' Fields.

Fear not that ye have died for nought;
The torch ye threw to us we caught,
Ten million hands will hold it high;
And freedom's light will never die;
We've learned the lesson that ye taught."

WE ARE proud of Triple "X" Tydol. And we are determined to protect its good name and its reputation. We are determined that wherever you drive, and at whatever Tydol pump you stop... you will get 100% Tydol.

Here is one gasoline no one can tamper with. Every drop of this remarkable motor fuel contains a harmless ingredient, a "Secret Detector," which discloses infallibly the slightest substitution, adulteration, or dilution.

When you ask for Tydol you get exactly what you pay for... the finest gasoline money can buy... at no extra cost. For Tydol is the only motor fuel sold at the regular gas price that combines these 3 extra features. (1) It actually lubricates as it drives. (2) It has extra high anti-knock qualities because it contains tetraethyl lead. (3) It is a super-power gasoline. And above all... it is protected for your protection.

TAFFETA IS SHOWN FOR BOTH AFTERNOON AND EVENING WEAR

(I. N. S. Fashion Correspondent)

PARIS — (INS) — Taffeta for both afternoon and evening wear is shown by Worth at his demi-season collection. Fluffy jabots, blouses, collars and cuffs in vaporous organdy give a feminine touch that is charming. Three-quarter coats in contrasting shades to the gowns are much featured, one of the most effective ensembles being a red and white check crepe gown with a sleeveless, black uncrushable velvet coat.

For evening wear, the decollete is to the neck in front, carried over the shoulder in a band, and often either knotted in the back, or laid down in bands. The skirts fit close to the knees and then billow forth. The great innovations are the dainty, lace-trimmed petticoats, which in one black taffeta gown, shows, the skirt being caught up in front.

ONE OF SMARTEST OUTFITS FOR WOMAN IS THE PLAIN SUIT

By Nadia De Beaud

(I. N. S. Fashion Correspondent)

PARIS — (INS) — There is no doubt that one of the smartest outfits for a woman is the plain suit, with no frills or complications. There is always a chic about simplicity. I had a long talk with Mary Garden a few days ago, who is now giving performances of "Resurrection" at the State-owned Opera-Comique.

She wore a simple dark blue suit of utterly conservative line, the line which fashion never changes, with a grey toque on her reddish hair, and a grey blouse to match. Not a scrap of jewelry. She spoke of her intended performances of Pelleas et Melisande at the same opera house, and then of her hope that she may go to Russia, the one country where she has never sung as yet. Miss Garden has always loved Paris, where she made her debut before the war in Debussy's masterpiece.

JUST about everything you could think of for convenience and economy have been built into the new Kelvinators. Foremost among them is the exclusive Food File with its beautiful chrome-fronted compartments for properly preserving the freshness of dairy products and the tender crispness of leafy vegetables for the table. A third compartment has separate covered dishes for keeping left-overs until you have use for them. There is efficiency and economy in a nutshell. Add to these the generous shelf storage space and the advantages of Kelvinator's "4 refrigerators in 1" and you have a refrigerator as near perfection as human ingenuity can come. And, in this refrigerator is the dependable mechanism that has been giving quiet, efficient service in the homes of users for 20 years.

"4 refrigerators in 1"

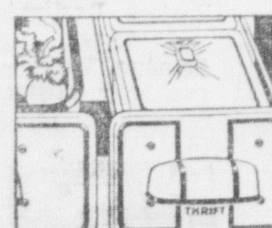

In each DeLuxe Kelvinator you have one refrigerator for safe preservation of food. Another provides below freezing temperature for indefinitely keeping meats and fish. A third delivers the World's Fastest Freezing Speed (water to ice in approximately 80 minutes) and a fourth refrigerator contains fast freezing trays for quantities of ice cubes or the preparation of frozen salads and desserts.

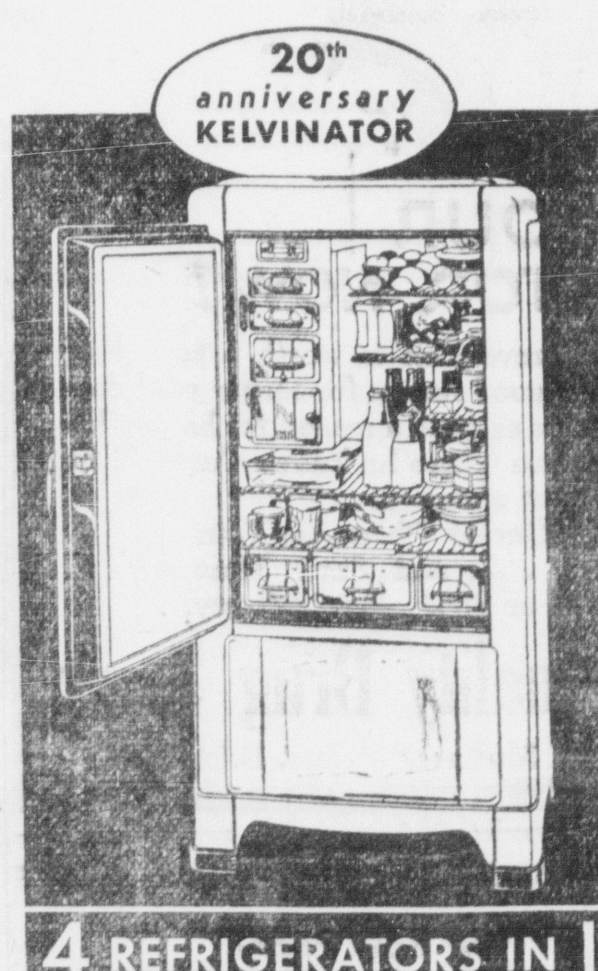

The Kelvin Crisper keeps vegetables and table greens fresh and crisp.

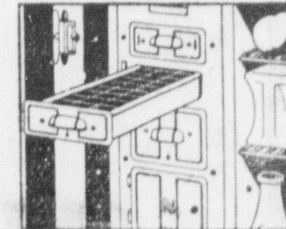

The Dairy Basket properly refrigerates butter, eggs and cheese for you.

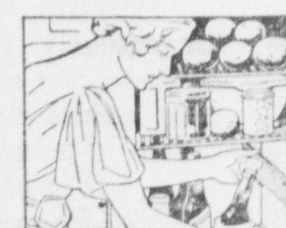

The Thrift Tray answers the question—"Where will I put these left-overs?"

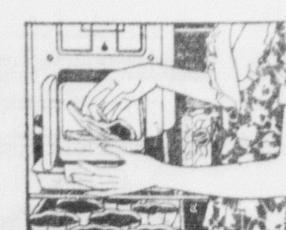

4 REFRIGERATORS IN 1

In this Iso-Thermic tray you get the World's Fastest Freezing Speed—from water to ice in approximately 80 minutes.

Kelvinator's hinged shelf permits the insertion of taller than average bottles.

The Frost Chest keeps fish or meat at a safe below freezing temperature.

HIBERNIANS WIN OUT OVER CORNWELLS A. A.

By T. M. Juno

The Hibernians chalked up their fifth consecutive victory of the Lower Bucks County League campaign last night on Leedom's field, nailing out the Cornwells A. A. team, 3-1, in a hurlers match between Danny Hines and Tom Dean.

Hines allowed the losers four bingles while the winners hammered Dean for but five safeties. Hines struck out eight batters and did not issue a pass while Dean fanned six and issued but one pass. Incidentally, of the total nine hits made, five were doubles.

Dean would have had a much easier time of the game had it not been for the Hibernian rightfielder, Frank Frankovic. Frankovic drove in two runs and scored the other, being responsible for all of the winners' tallies.

He came through in the sixth with the score deadlocked at one all and with two out found Roe resting on third and Dougherty second. He immediately slammed a single to right to register the winning tallies.

Cornwells scored its only run in the fourth. After Dean fanned, Schwartz singled to left and stole second. Devlin flied out but J. Peters solved a Hines' curve for his second double of the game, scoring Schwartz. Farino grounded out.

The Hibernians had taken the lead in the second frame when Frankovic reached first on Ervin's error. He advanced on a wild pitch and scored on Choma's two-bagger to left.

The victory put the Big Green one-half game behind Hulmeville for first place in the league standing.

WATER SHORTAGE

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (INS) — State Engineer Edwin W. Burritt has asked water commissioners throughout Wyoming for complete data concerning the available supply of water. He indicated that if their reports justified his belief that the most serious water shortage in the state history threatened, he would ask the federal government for funds with which to carry out a conservation program similar to that recently authorized in Utah.

GOLD STRIKE ACTIVITY

DURANGO, Colo. (INS) — Results of the rich gold "strike" made by Charles Starr at the Red Arrow mine, nine miles east of Mancos, recently manifested themselves in renewed activity throughout the once-famous La Plata quadrangle of southwestern Colorado, inactive for many years. Although the valuable deposit was found last fall, many operators awaited the coming of spring to commence operations.

"PETE" DEVLIN HANDS ODD FELLOWS DEFEAT

HULMEVILLE, May 25—Hulmeville A. A. continued to set the pace in the Lower Bucks circuit, blanking the Odd Fellows' team, 7-0, here last night. "Pete" Devlin was the twirler who handed the goose eggs to the Bristol team.

In whitewashing the Oddies, Devlin gave up but two bingles, both coming from the bat of Horace Beck, first sacker for the losers. Devlin was given good support and never was in danger of being scored upon. Devlin also aided his team with the willow, connecting for two hits in three trips to the plate.

Hulmeville clinched the game in the third inning when it pushed five tallies across the platter. The league leaders have won six games and lost two.

aided institutions, including Pennsylvania State College, the Universities of Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania and Temple University, and specialized schools for the blind and various vocations.

Through the Bureau of Professional Licensing, the department examines and licenses practitioners in the following 17 professions: medicine, pharmacy, dentistry, optometry, osteopathy, surgery, nursing, undertaking, veterinary, public accountancy, architecture, mining, engineering, real estate, brokerage, barbering and beauty culture.

Also lodged in the Department of Public Instruction are the following boards, with their functions:

Pennsylvania State Library Board which operates and supervises the State Library in collecting Pennsylv-vania history, social and political science, art and literature for the use of various departments. The Law Library which lends books to attorneys throughout the state is part of the State Library.

Pennsylvania State Museum Board which collects historical objects dating from the time of William Penn to the present day.

Pennsylvania State Board of Censors which supervises the examination of all motion pictures shown in the state and must approve them before they can be exhibited.

Public School Employees' Retirement Board which administers funds available for pensioning retired teachers and passes upon retirement applications.

The department is headed by a Superintendent of Public Instruction, nominated by the Governor and approved by the Senate for a four-year term, who is chief executive officer of the department and supervisor of all its activities. The total appropriation to the department for the 1933-35 biennium was $77,147,118, of which $72,000,000-plus was for subsidies for schools, colleges and universities.

TO ATTEND FUNERAL

Members of Col. J. M. Gosline Camp, Sons of Veterans, are asked to meet at the camp room, Radcliffe and Walnut streets, tomorrow at two p. m., to attend the funeral of Allen Woodington.

BRILLIANT BLOOMS IN MIDSUMMER

The Zinnia of today is a bold beauty and a striking improvement over its ancestors.

Many new forms have been developed by scientific plantmen as well as new colors and color combinations. Zinnias like warm weather and the seed must be sown in warm soil. If the soil is cold they may decay and never germinate. If you will learn to sow the seeds of Zinnias in the open ground where the plants are to remain, you will have early flowers, sturdy plants, and generally satisfactory results.

In freshly turned soil plant the seeds perhaps an inch deep and six inches or more apart. Firm the soil to the seeds and leave a loose mulch on the surface. Do not sprinkle and if it should rain, break the crust when the surface is sufficiently dry. The plants should eventually be spaced a foot to eighteen inches apart. In the thinning process remove each intervening plant (with plenty of soil).

Varieties are many, but the Dahlia-Flowered Zinnias are perhaps most popular. The flowers of these are of enormous size, some measuring five to six inches in diameter. The petals are slightly cupped and the stems are long with attractive foliage. They are brilliant in coloring, with a range from the most delicate shades of primrose to the vivid crimson, including also many lovely combinations of colors.

Other tall growing sorts are California giant Zinnias. These may be planted in the background with the more Dwarf Lilliput Zinnias in the foreground. The Lilliputs resemble Pompon Dahlias and may be had in a great variety of colors, also in mixtures.

There is no more satisfactory flower for garden and for cutting than the modern Zinnia, and for mass planting they are unrivaled. They are easily grown, bloom quickly from seed planted in warm weather, and by dusting occasionally with dusting sulphur to prevent mildew, they may be kept in a healthy condition.

RADIO ENGINEERS MEET

PHILADELPHIA—(INS) — Seven hundred of the country's leading radio technicians as well as representatives from Holland, Canada, and other countries are expected to attend the ninth annual convention of the Institute of Radio Engineers which will be held in Philadelphia, May 28, 29, 30, according to an announcement by W. F. Diehl, chairman of the convention committee.

NEW LIGHT ON OUTLAW

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—(INS) — Jesse James once sought to turn over a new leaf, and came to New Mexico for the purpose, M. A. Otero, Sr., former territorial governor, revealed. The notorious bandit, he said, remained in Las Vegas under an assumed name. Old Missouri acquaintances eventually learned of his presence and he had to give up his good intentions.

AUTO DEADLY WEAPON

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah—(INS)—An automobile is a deadly weapon, according to a felony complaint filed in the Salt Lake City court. Gerald Van Gerven, a farmer, was charged with assaulting J. C. Baron with a "deadly weapon" by running him down and striking him with his truck. The penalty upon conviction is a prison term not exceeding five years.

PILES
Suffer no more! Here's real relief at last for all forms of Piles—Bleeding, Itching and protruding. Pazo Ointment does all the things necessary, in the manner necessary. First, it soothes—relieves the soreness and inflammation. Second, it heals—repairs the torn tissue. Third, it absorbs—dries up excess mucus and reduces the swollen blood vessels which are Piles.
In other words, Pazo doesn't merely relieve—it tends to correct the condition of Piles as a whole.
The method of application makes it doubly effective. Special Pile Pipe attached to tube enables you to apply ointment high up in the rectum where it will reach all affected parts. Thousands say Pazo is the only thing that ever gave them real relief. Thousands say it saved them the need of an operation. Get Pazo today and suffer no longer.
